

The International Digital Enterprise Alliance G7™ Masters qualification program identifies those printing companies, prepress service providers and agencies who have been trained to use the G7 Proof to Print Process and can produce proofs or can print to G7 specifications. The G7 Masters qualification means that the company uses the most modern technology, techniques, proofing and press controls, and standards required to produce a close visual match from proof to print.

As color management across all printing processes is often the most difficult area to manage, especially when dealing with multiple printers and multiple production methods with projects that span years of time, you can be assured that the press sheets will match your proof and that color consistency will be maintained at all times.
